ANTIOCH TO DRESS IN GALA ATTIRE FOR BIG FESTIVAL

Three-day Program Is in a Class of Its Own

The city of Antioch is undergoing rapid transformation under the treatment of Lions' club members and Antioch business men who are co-operating in the expensive decorations, the splendor of which would dazzle the most pretentious efforts of old Romans on a holiday. The city is being made ready for the Antioch festival which will open at the Village park in Antioch next Friday, Aug. 12, and will continue through Sunday.

Every effort will be made to complete the decorations by Saturday of this week, when newspaper cameramen from Chicago and Waukegan will photograph Antioch in her gala attire. By Monday evening individual chairmen are expected to have all arrangements completed, so that Antioch's first annual festival will be off to a good start on opening day, hampered by no last minute details to be handled.

Robert C. Abt, chairman of the amusement concessions and Jim McMillen, who is in charge of games, yesterday went to Chicago, where they completed arrangements for bringing to the festival complete complement of amusement devices. Today Adolph Kucera is placing the order for the Main street decorations toward which more than sixty firms have contributed.

Shorts Parade Draws Attention

Twenty-five ladies have entered the list of contestants to take part in the shorts parade and the beauty contests scheduled for Saturday and Sunday. Entry blanks are printed in the Antioch News and early entries are urged. Age limits are generous, starting at 6 years and extending to 60. Good moral character of all entrants is the only strict requirement of those promoting the contests.

Beautiful loving cups will be given as first prizes in both the shorts parade contest and the beauty contest. Merchandise certificates will reward winners of first, second and third places. Even at the games there will be no gaudy junk pieces unloaded on reluctant winners, only merchandise prizes with a real value.

Ox Roast Starts Friday

On the afternoon of the opening day of the festival a professional chef, brought in for the occasion will start roasting the ox barbecue. It will take 22 hours and 6 cords of wood to do it, but when it is completed on the following afternoon free barbecue sandwiches will be served as long as they last. A dance floor will be built in the park and free dancing will be a feature of each evening, with music by the Antioch Lions Festival orchestra.

These are only a few of the unique features of the Antioch festival, designed to forever raise the standard of festivals in the Antioch region. And last but not least in importance is the purpose of the whole thing. The Lions club is shooting at a star; the money raised by the festival will be expended toward the realization of their long cherished dream—to make Antioch an important center for winter sports.

The coming festival is the first step in an ambitious program which may put the beautiful little city on the map as one of the most important winter sport centers in the State.

Old Orchard Inn Opens On Thomas Coole Place

Henry Holzrichter, recently of Chicago, has purchased the Thomas Coole farm one mile south of Antioch on route 34 and rebuilt and added to the old farmhouse, transforming it into the commodious quarters of the Old Orchard Inn, which he opened last week.

The Old Orchard Inn takes its name from the orchard growing beside the Inn, said to be fifty years old, with several trees for which a hundred years are claimed. Thomas Coole lived on the place for 60 years and Holzrichter purchased it after his death.

The Inn they have built is a particularly attractive place; the bar is unusually handsome, the dining room bright and inviting, and an air-conditioning system is being installed.

Mr. and Mrs. Holzrichter will be in charge of the place, assisted by their son, "Bud," and by their daughter, Mrs. Betty Voight on week-ends.

Snakes Alive! They're Wanted In Springfield

Urbana, Aug. 4.—Snakes alive are wanted by the Illinois Natural History Survey—not just any snakes but rattlers and copperheads.

So if you have in your backyard, pasture, or hayfield, snakes of either variety, tame or wild, Francis X. Lueth, student assistant of the Illinois Natural History Survey at Urbana, wants to hear from you.

For the third time, Lueth is taking the Natural History Survey snake collection to the Illinois State Department of Conservation exhibit. Loan of the Survey collection has been authorized by Dr. T. H. Frison, Survey chief.

One of the few snakes to rate as a radio star is a timber rattler that will be shown in the fair exhibit. This four-foot rattler was put on the air by Lueth over the University of Illinois station, WILL, last winter as part of a Natural History Survey broadcast.

DAIRY QUEEN WILL REIGN AT WILMOT FAIR

Yearly Event Will See Revival of Old-Fashioned Contest

The crowning of the dairy queen will be a high light of the West Kenosha County Fair at Wilmot, Wis. The queen will be chosen from the ranks of the 4-H club girls.

The fair will open on Wednesday, August 17, and continue through three days. A feature of Wednesday will be the personal appearance of the WLS barn dance program stars, who will stage a performance in the afternoon and again in the evening. On Thursday afternoon and evening the stars of the WLS on Parade program will appear.

A parade will open the festivities on Wednesday, led by the American Legion post and featuring three bands, and many interesting parade groups. On Thursday the 18th, classes will be judged. On the 18th and 19th the horse shows will be presented and on the morning of Friday, the 19th, the feature contest will be a revival of the old-fashioned horse-pulling contest.

The exhibits will be given the usual attention and there will be numerous rides and concessions on the grounds. The grounds have been materially extended this year to make more space for the exhibits and for the entertainment program, and there will be better parking facilities.

PREACHER QUILTS RACKET QUIZ

Makes Pulpit Statement of Withdrawal from Slot
Machine Investigation

Rev. J. W. F. Davis, pastor of the First Congregational church of Waukegan, quit the slot machine racket quiz early this week, announcing from his pulpit last Sunday that his action was motivated by a recent conviction that the whole movement was "political."

Rev. Davis stated that in the beginning of the drive against slot machines he had made it clear that he wanted no part of any political strategy. Convinced at that time that the reform crusade was genuine he decided to throw in with the crusaders. More recent developments had caused him to change his mind and his attitude in the matter.

Rev. Davis served notice that he would be nobody's tool or catspaw, and would countenance no political or gangster connivance that presumed to use the church as a cover.

He paid a tribute to the sincerity of special prosecuting attorney, C. E. Jack, whose connection with the affair, he declared, was in every respect an honorable one.

Attorney Yager Offers to Quit
Rev. Davis' announcement was followed by a request from Phil Yager, attorney for the reform group, that he clarify his reference to political influence. Yager stated that if his candidacy for the office of probate judge was the stumbling block in the minister's path he was ready to withdraw from the candidacy or from the position of attorney for the group. He asked the county board of supervisors to advise him, as to which course to take.

A number of those interested in the movement doubt that Yager's candidacy gave rise to Rev. Davis' statement, since they do not regard Yager's participation in the crusade as a very smart political move.

Special prosecutor C. E. Jack will appear before the board next Tuesday to ask an appropriation for the investigation.

Good Card for Grayslake Arena

Bobby Bruns will meet Ralph Garibaldi in the preliminary and El Sayre will take on Jack Conley, Boston slugger.

CIRCUIT JUDGE REFUSES TO VACATE SENTENCES

CIO Strikers Must Pay Penalty for Contempt of Contempt of Court

Circuit Judge Ralph Dady refused to vacate or modify the sentences imposed on ten CIO leaders of the North Chicago strike, when such a course was recommended to him by company officials in accord with their agreement when they effected a strike settlement with the union leaders. The officials made it plain at that time that they could only recommend such a course to the Judge.

The meeting of the CIO attorney with Judge Dady, at which meeting the Judge was requested to vacate the sentences, was held in private. No reporters were admitted, but after the meeting Judge Dady had a few words with press representatives, making his position clear.

He stated that he felt it was to the best interest of the Community for the sentences to be served.

D. D. CAMPBELL DIES IN CHICAGO

Deceased Had Lived Nineteen Years in Antioch.
Buried in Elmhurst

D. D. Campbell, for many years a resident of Antioch, died in Chicago Thursday afternoon and was buried Saturday at Mt. Emblem cemetery, near Elmhurst, following the funeral in the William Funeral home, Oak Park.

D. D. Campbell was born at Kleinburg, Ontario, Canada, Sept. 1, 1858. He came to Chicago at the age of 11 years and was made a citizen when he came of age. He spent the greater part of his life in Chicago, but nineteen years were spent in Antioch. He had been in failing health for several years, but prior to his death he was confined to his bed only two weeks.

Mr. Campbell was deputy sheriff of the Superior court of Cook county for 20 years; following that he engaged in the real estate business in Oak Park, then moved to Antioch where he spent the remainder of his life. His home was on Spafford street.

The survivors are Mrs. Anna Campbell, wife of the deceased, who was Miss Anna Denninger, of Chicago, prior to her marriage; their daughter, Mrs. Maud Puerkel, of Oak Park, and Miss Anna Campbell, another daughter, living with her mother in Antioch. Mr. Campbell was attended in his last illness by Dr. Lucas of Oak Park. The Sequoit Lodge of Antioch, of which he was a member, conducted the funeral rites.

CAR IGNITED BY SUN RAYS

Louis Nielsen, of Nielsen's Barbecue, on route 59, suffered the virtual loss of his Chevrolet car yesterday through a "break fire."

The car was parked on Rothers' drive about two miles from the Barbecue, when it suddenly burst into flames on the seat of the car. Observers said they had noticed how the rays of the sun were beating in from both sides of the car onto a certain portion of the seat where the flames started. Just a few minutes before a child had been sent to the car to look for something and he reported that there was nothing at all on the seat. The windows were closed, so that it was impossible for a passer-by to throw a lighted cigarette in the car. It is suggested that the flame might have started from a defect in the plate glass serving as a magnifying glass and conveying more intense heat from the sun.

PAYROLLERS TO BE ASSESSED BY DEMOCRATS

"Donations" from State Employees to Aid War Chest for Campaign

Springfield, Ill.—Democratic state employees will pay their share of the financing of the party's fall campaign to a state group rather than to the county chairmen, according to plans worked out by leaders here today.

Dissatisfaction with county chairmen's handling of last primary's campaign finances whereby chairmen assessed state employees in their home counties, prompted return to the old method of collecting "donations" from state employees usually two per cent of their pay.

At a meeting held here early last week, and attended by F. Lynden Smith, director of the state department of public works and buildings and Democratic downstate campaign manager, it was agreed to abandon the county method of assessing employees.

Reason for return to the older method of collecting state employees' "donations" was said to have been because some county chairmen got out of control of state leaders in the recent primary. A committee will be named to handle donations.

In some counties where a county chairman is "beyond control" a committee of three leading Democrats recommended by members of the legislature in the district in which the county is located will be named to handle county campaign fund expenditures.

The new group which will receive and distribute the "donations" calls it cards were in circulation among the cards were in circulation among the self "the Illinois" Membership employees today. The "donations" are expected to create a campaign war chest running into several hundred thousand dollars.

ONE DEAD, MANY ARE INJURED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

One Woman Killed in Collision on Loon Lake Road

The last week-end was marred by an unusual number of motor accidents on Lake County highways. Thirteen persons were injured and one woman was killed outright.

Mrs. Ruby Collis, 25, of Glencoe, died at the scene of a crash at the intersection of Loon Lake and Deep Lake roads last Sunday, when a west-bound car driven by her husband, Lawrence, 25, on Loon Lake road, collided with a car coming south on Deep Lake road, driven by Marion Selsiecki, 34, of Chicago. Selsiecki, and his companion, Stanley Lepianko, 32, were seriously injured.

The Hit and Run Driver

One of the most despised public enemies today is the hit-and-run driver. We see him as a vicious character who runs down pedestrians in the street and then runs away, coward-like, in terror.

But in spite of his inhuman actions, he often isn't a coward, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club. Other factors drive him to his miserable behavior which only a psychiatrist can understand.

Many of us have these same instincts, but our reason and sense of human duty overrule them. Only very few of the drivers guilty of this offense are actually vicious in their intent. Practically all of them flee the scene of their crime because of psychological reasons.

There is the motorist who becomes panic-stricken at what he has done and runs away without considering how much he is aggravating his offense. This type of person is usually neurotic. . . he is unstable, and unable to think out the situation clearly because of infantile reactions or a feeling of inferiority.

Mr. Hayes points out that the most dangerous driver is the egocentric motorist who thinks he doesn't have to abide by ordinary laws. He is so sold on himself that when he does recognize the law on rare occasion, he does it only because he feels that it will be less bother to himself at the moment, not out of consideration for the rights of others.

Every potential hit-and-run driver must understand that the act of running away is a felony. The chances of escape have been estimated at one out of twenty-five, under normal circumstances; and if he is caught, a prison sentence stares him in the face.

Whereas if he had stopped immediately to take care of the injured and furnished the police with a complete report of the accident, his chances of complete exoneration would have been nearly assured.

Regardless of the psychological factors causing the hit-and-run driver to act as he does, he is a decided menace, and the Chicago Motor club has a standing reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest, conviction, and incarceration of a driver causing death or injury.

Many motorists are irritated at having to wait behind buses and trucks as they stop at railroad crossings on rural highways when there is no train in sight, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club said today.

"Though at times this action seems unnecessary, the law requires all school buses, vehicles carrying passengers for hire, and trucks hauling inflammables or explosives to come to a full stop and look both ways before proceeding," Mr. Hayes explained.

"Each bit of 'unnecessary' precaution on the part of these drivers has reduced this type of accident and saved thousands of lives since the rule was inaugurated in 1935," he said, "a revision of the statute passed in 1917 requiring all vehicles to reduce speed to ten miles an hour as they passed over a grade crossing."

"Relief Bums"

A news item tells of a Negro taxi driver who was unable to work for a time because of illness. He obtained $50 from a government relief agency to tide him over. Now he is back at work, and is trying to return the money. When it was pointed out to him that he was not legally obligated to do this, he observed that "that was the way I was raised—and that's the way I'm raising my child."

A great many other Americans can learn a lesson from this Negro taxi driver. One of the most ominous portents on the horizon is the fact that thousands of people have apparently come to look on relief as a "profession." They plan to make it their "life work." Productive jobs in private industry hold no attraction for them; when they can take it easy at the taxpayers' expense. They figure someone owes them a living.

This isn't a criticism of those people who have turned to relief only as a last resort, and are eager to get off the rolls as soon as opportunity for a real job comes along. Nor is it a criticism of relief per se. The hungry must be fed, the homeless sheltered, the clothesless clothed. Honest beneficiaries of relief aggressively seek real employment. Professional "relief bums" are a new menace to democratic government.

The Negro's statement was news because his attitude was so unusual today. It should be printed on every relief check and public grant.

$43,000,000,000 in the Red

One year from now, the federal debt will be in excess of $43,000,000,000. If relief expenditures continue, which seems likely, it may go far beyond even that stratospheric figure.

In the light of that fact, is it any wonder that business is worried—that the investor is discouraged—and that unemployment is near the record level? Government, like an individual, can spend beyond its income just so long. Then comes bankruptcy.

If the next Congress wants to avert that end, it will give thorough and immediate attention to the tax and debt problem. Until an honest start is made toward a balanced budget and regular debt reduction, we can't have good times in this country.

They traveled up the sea coast along the Atlantic ocean into the province of Quebec, stopping in Quebec city and in Montreal, down the shore of the St. Lawrence river to Toronto, crossed the province of Ontario, took the ferry at Port Huron back to Detroit, then home. Staghead Attacks Oak Trees in October

Urbana, Aug. 4.—Antlers on the head of a stag make the heart of a hunter beat high, but "antlers" on oak trees are only headaches for park superintendents, city foresters, and forest preserve officials in northern Illinois, according to reports received by Dr. L. R. Telson, head botanist, Illinois Natural History Survey.

The dying of branches at the tops of oaks, a condition commonly known as staghead, is often caused by a fungus which makes its appearance above ground, usually in October, as a common edible mushroom, Dr. Telson explains. Mushroom enthusiasts know it as honey mushroom or oak fungus. But to Dr. Telson and Dr. J. C. Carter, assistant botanist of the Survey, this fungus is known much less favorably as the cause of the shoestring rot disease of trees.

Seriousness of shoestring rot at this time, the botanists say, is explained in part by the drought years 1934 to 1936, which killed many oaks and reduced the vitality of those that survived.

Change of tree habitat is another common reason offered by Dr. Telson and Dr. Carter for the inroads of shoestring rot. Forest grown oaks, they say, do not respond kindly to domestication.

Shoestring rot may be suspected if the leaves of the oak begin to wither, burn in the sun, or drop to the ground, according to Dr. Telson.

Inroads of the fungus upon a tree already attacked may be checked, Dr. Telson says, and the lives of trees lengthened indefinitely. But the process is too complicated for anyone but a skilled tree expert to attempt.

Local Business Has Steady Increase

Darnaby's shoe store is an inviting place now for the lady who watches for the late summer bargains. White shoes are cut to the most intriguing prices and the interesting thing about them is the fact that there is still a wide range of good styles and materials, probably owing to the extreme lateness of the season this spring. There are leathers and fabrics, sport shoes and dress shoes, with practically any heel you may prefer.

It Takes Time to Clean the Range for Chickens

Clean range for young chickens is good insurance, according to H. L. Shrader of the United States Department of Agriculture. "Clean range," however, does not mean mere neatness and removal of scraps and refuse. Time is the main "cleaning" factor—and it takes two years to make a range clean enough to be safe.

Shrader defines a clean range as "one that has been free of chickens for at least two years and one on which poultry manure has not been spread." In two years, poultry parasites will die for lack of a chance to multiply. A clean range, free of parasites, gives young chickens a chance to grow without a handicap.

An ideal range, Shrader adds, also supplies plenty of shade for the hot summer months and an abundant supply of succulent green feed and fresh water that is not contaminated by parasites.

Calves on Wire

The big problem with little bossy is to keep her dry and out of drafts until she gets well accustomed to this strange world. A wire floor in the calf pen is one way in which to keep the baby dry, says Hord's Dairyman. Use one-half inch mesh sandscreen on 2 by 4 or 4 by 4 frames. Use No. 9 wire stretched both ways every five inches underneath the sandscreen. The frames should be made in sections about 3 feet square so that they may be removed for cleaning.

Agricultural Notes

Alfalfa cut before the blossom period is likely to winterkill.

Good grain storage on the farm is the first step in conservation.

Twenty-eight degrees above zero is the temperature at which eggs freeze.

The 1937 American cotton crop was 18,700,000 bales, the largest on record.

Wether lambs usually sell at least $1 a hundredweight higher than ram lambs.

Milk proteins and vitamins are especially needed for good hatchability.

Common salt is the only mineral that is almost always lacking in feeds.

Dairy cows need many minerals. Fortunately, the usual combinations of feeds supply most of them.

"HIPPO" IS ONE OF NATURE'S ANTIQUES

Huge Beast Is Only Living Relic of Stone Age.

Washington, D. C.—Birth of a nine-pound baby hippopotamus at the National Zoological park in Washington, and the hope that the tiny infant will survive, focuses attention on one of the queerest wild creatures in captivity. The newly arrived hippo is a pygmy, and if it reaches maturity will, like its mother, weigh only about 450 pounds. This contrasts with a weight of 4,800 to 6,000 pounds for the ordinary adult hippopotamus.

"Growing as rare as the vanishing American buffalo, that vanishing African, the hippopotamus, receives protection from several governments of middle and southern Africa," says the National Geographic society. "Wardens help the hippo escape the native steak platters. Left to himself, the cumbersome creature is about as dangerous as a grand piano."

"In spite of his successful zoo career as a very-wild-beast behind bars, the hippo is only a barnyard brute at heart—in short, a pig. Half-pig at least, says the scientist, considering the short legs, four-toed foot, rasping grunt, rooting muzzle and tusks. Pig-and-a-half, observes the layman with a measuring eye. For this super-porker is outranked for sheer bulk by the elephant alone among land animals. Parking space for a standard model hippo would need to be about 14 feet long. The average hippo's hide, two inches thick, is draped around three tons of animal."

"Horse of the River."

"River swine" was the ancient Egyptians' name for him. A visiting Greek three centuries B. C. dubbed him 'horse of the river,' and the Greek for that phrase—hippopotamus—became his title, a name as unwieldy as his frame.

"This nightmare of a pig has a spongy skin with a network of fine creases. It is a rich hue of rare beefsteak, shading into blue-gray and dappled with chocolate. His face is shaped like a violin-cello gabbled at the top with a pair of alert eyes and garnished at either end of the nose ridge with knobs of eyes and nostrils. Stubby legs and short flattened tail are dwarfed by his bulk."

"One of his odder features is the 'bloody sweat,' a reddish oil which pours from the hippo's pores under stress of pain or excitement."

"This greatest of hogs is one of nature's antiquities, a living relic of the Stone age. It may be the only big brute left which retains its face and figure from the days when prehistoric savages of southeastern spears at it along the banks of the Thames. Remains indicate that the hippo once roamed through Europe and even India. His four-toed feet have beat a slow, thunderous retreat before advancing civilization to the dank heart of Africa, which is now the bewildered hippo's last stand. He lurks among the reedy margins of lakes and rivers from the latitude of Timbuktu south to the latitude of Durban, already growing noticeably scarce around the edges of the continent."

"By day the hippo hides his homely face in shady marshes or gallops along river bottoms with whalelike excursions to the surface to spout for air every five or ten minutes. No matter how cumbersome on land, he dives and swims with Olympic skill."

No Dainty Appetite.

"Catering to their gigantic appetite, which is exclusively vegetarian, is a hippo size job. In captivity, a baby can drink 15 pints of milk and squeal for more. An adult can stow away in his ten feet of stomach a dozen bunches of carrots, a half-dozen heads of cabbage, a peck of apples, 15 loaves of bread, 150 pounds of hay."

"Short legs make him stumble so easily that low flimsy fences are protection against hippo marauding visits. When the husky herds grow numerous enough to trample crops along cultivated riversides, they are transferred from the protected list to the 'black list.' White hunters track them down, finding them about as much sport as a frightened cow. Natives kill them for food, feasting on hippo bacon and smoked tongue, rendering the fat into a pure oil that doesn't turn rancid for years."

"Mild manners and steady habits place the hippo among the respectable bourgeois of the jungle and surely among the favorites of the zoo. His popularity as a captive was well under way in 293 B. C. in the zoo of Octavius. Barnum billed him as Behemoth of the Nile."

"The pygmy hippopotamuses which range through Liberia on Africa's west coast are vest pocket editions similar to fossils found on Madagascar and Sicily. Naturalists wonder whether the small size was a special adaptation to island surroundings, and why this bantam model now lives only in Liberia and zoos."

New Uses for Feathers

New York.—Chicken feathers, once a wasted by-product of the poultry industry, are now utilized extensively, the American Poultry Journal reports. Feathers are used extensively in millinery and for dusters.

LAKE VILLA

Lake Villa Com. Church (M. E.)
Sunday School—10:00 A. M.
Morning Worship—11:00 A. M.

There are a number of children who have been very regular in attendance at Sunday-school and are entitled to the pin which signifies a year's perfect attendance. These will be awarded very soon.

The O. C. Board will meet at the church on Monday evening, Aug. 8th.

The Ladies' Aid Society held a successful summer sale last week and the sale committee reported at the meeting held at Mrs. McGlashan's on Wednesday afternoon. The style show by the Marianne dress shop at Antioch was very enjoyable and quite a contrast to the gowns of the gay nineties which followed and were modeled by Mrs. Sommermeyer and Evelyn Fish.

Mrs. Ivy M. Christensen and son, Gerald, from Plainfield, Wis., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Sommermeyer last week.

Mrs. Elsie Nader of Green Bay, Wis., is spending a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nader, and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Ben Cribb entertained a friend, Mrs. Fred Segermark, from Long Island, New York, several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sheehan, nee Ruth Avery, are the parents of a 7½ pound daughter, Liane Marie, at St. Therese hospital, on Wednesday, July 27, and all are doing well.

The Officers' club of the Royal Neighbors will hold a public card party at the home of Mrs. Clara Petersen at Grass Lake on Wednesday, August 10th.

Mrs. Ira Bailey and daughter, Constance, who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seeger, for the past month, returned to her home in Cleveland, Ohio, on Friday. Mrs. Bailey made the trip by auto.

Mrs. Mary Kapple is spending the week with her son, Charles Kapple and wife, at Grayslake.

Miss Evelyn Swanson started Sunday on a trip to Estes Park and other scenic places in Colorado to spend a two weeks' vacation. Her mother and sister went to Waukegan with her to see her off and a friend accompanied her.

SHOULD CHECK ON GROWTH OF CHICKS Flocks May Be Developing Too Slow, Too Fast.

By Dr. W. C. Thompson, Poultry Husbandman, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, WNU Service.

It is a part of good business management for the poultry producer to know whether his chick flocks are growing at about the rate which should be expected of average, well bred, healthy chicks.

It may be that the rate of growth being shown by a given lot of chicks is not up to par, or it may be that they are growing faster than experience has indicated as being optimum. Chick growers, therefore, should have some sort of standard so that the development of chicks during the growing season may be measured.

This does not mean that it is necessary for the poultryman to weigh all of the chicks every week or two. He may obtain a good average by weighing any ten chicks caught at random at each weighing time. Average White Leghorn pullet chicks should weigh 39 pounds per 100 at the end of the first month; 69 pounds at the end of the sixth week; 109 pounds at the end of the eighth week; 171 at the end of the twelfth week; 240 at the end of 16 weeks, and about 338 pounds per 100 pullets at the end of 24 weeks. The seven corresponding weights for heavy breed pullets, such as Rhode Island Reds, New Hampshires or Barred Plymouth Rocks, are 18, 43, 83, 130, 213, 304, and 427 pounds per 100 birds.

These weight standards can be copied on a card and nailed on the feed room door or kept in another convenient place for comparison with average weights of this year's pullet flocks determined from time to time. One need not worry if pullet flocks are running at just about the level of these standards, or somewhat heavier, but if they are running at considerably under these standards, inquiry should be made as to the probable cause. Experience teaches that unless pullets develop at approximately these rates, they cannot reasonably be expected to reach egg-laying maturity at the normal time and be in condition to continue through a long year of normal egg yield. Next year's pullet layers are in the making in this spring's chick flocks and this summer's growing pullets. It is important to keep an eagle eye on their rate of growth and make sure that it does not depart too far from normal expectancy.

Many Soybean Varieties Needed for Varied Uses

Breeding to improve the soybean is only beginning, but the chances are bright, says W. J. Morse of the United States Department of Agriculture. New varieties are needed, even though the department and the states have already imported more than 10,000 lots of seed.

Soybeans are particular in their local requirements, are more variable than many plants, and are grown for a variety of purposes. A good forage variety for one area may not do at all well elsewhere. A good forage bean may not be a good milling bean, or be useful as a vegetable.

Some growers want soybeans for forage; others for oil and meal processing; still others as vegetables. The result is that each local area in the soybean regions needs a soybean variety that will do well in that particular place and for a definite purpose. Such an area may even need two or three varieties—one for forage, one for high oil or protein content for the mills, and a third for the table.

The soybean is a self-fertilized plant. Artificial crossing is difficult and tedious, but it can be done.

In the Feed Lot

Train beans to a pole, or a fence for maximum yield.

Hens of all ages should be carefully culled until September 1.

Chickens take dust baths to rid themselves of bird-lice.

Eggs are an important source of iron. They also contain calcium, sulfur, and phosphorus in goodly amounts.

A correctly adjusted plow does better work, saves time and pulls easier.

Eggs at room temperature beat more quickly and to a greater volume than do eggs beaten when taken from the refrigerator.

For fence posts, black locust is the tree to plant, but other kinds are white cedar, European or Japanese larch.

SHERIFF DOOLITTLE IS HANDY ABOUT STRIKES

Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle has received a lot of publicity as a result of his decisive way of quelling the strike at the North Chicago Hardware Foundry. The press of various cities has commended him for the efficiency of his men and he is in receipt of many letters from various municipal and county officials over the country. This is the second violent strike Sheriff Doolittle has been called on to quell during his administration, the other being the Fansteel strike of 1937. At the time the Fansteel strikers were put down by the sheriff and his men it was conceded to be the first of an epidemic of violent sit-down strikes to be ended by the intervention of a county sheriff, unaided by State authorities.

No Witches Burned in U. S. There seems not to be any authentic case of the burning of a witch in the United States. Many, however, were executed by hanging in the Seventeenth century in New England, as witchcraft was a capital crime.

Sunny Puerto Rico Weather records show that only five days a year on an average are entirely without sunshine in Puerto Rico. The climate of this American island in the West Indies is tropical, but fanned by ocean breezes.
